

Due to anatomical longitudinal ( $\ell$ ) component of optical z axis, locations b and o in the same optical cross section are in different anatomical cross sections.

